-Advertising in major gaming publications (including Knights of the Dinner Table and Game Buyer Magazine) and on major gaming web sites (including the RPGnet network of sites).

-Massive web support, including free music, character sheets, supplemental material, character class personality tests, and the Fan Rewards program.

-Eye-catching and breath-taking artwork by best-of-the-industry artists who have done work for companies like White Wolf, Wizards of the Coast, Steve Jackson Games and Eden Studios.

-Easy to skim text, packed with info on every possible topic, will grab browsers and get them hooked (see sample pages).

-A huge book (over 400 pages) and a complete RPG at the same price as much smaller books.

-A great alternative for all your non-D20 customers who are looking for something new.

-A unique concept and style (a city described at an unprecedented level of realism and detail) that is already creating a big buzz among the gaming community.

-Tibet the Role Playing Game, using the same rule system, and Behind the Eyes of Madness, the first supplement, now available.
